Leo & Amy Grant

Double Diamond Business Owners

Long Workweeks, Short Paychecks "It's really for real!" Leo Grant exclaims. "We had no idea a business could give such personal fulfillment and security."

At the beginning, both Leo and his wife, Amy, were working 50 to 60 hours a week in their professions, yet they couldn't keep up with the mounting bills. Despite their respected positions, the Grants had short paychecks and substantial debts.

"I didn't have children just to leave them with babysitters," Amy says adamantly. "I wanted nothing more than to be at home with my boys. But as our bills kept growing, that goal seemed more impossible." Leo adds, "I thought we'd never get out from under the financial pressures we faced."

Terry, Paul, James, and John

A Master's Degree and a Master Plan Leo was completing his master's degree to bring home more money, when Amy found what she calls the master plan. She explains, "When I saw the business plan, I knew this was the prescription for our bills. It had 'stay-at-home mom' written all over it!"

"I wasn't that easily convinced, but I told Amy I'd support her efforts," Leo says. Fortunately, the master plan quickly converted Leo: In seven months, the Grants' monthly business income was more than Amy's monthly salary. The next month their business income exceeded Leo's monthly salary after teaching for 10 years! In three and a half years, the Grants were Diamonds, and just two years later qualified as Double Diamonds!

The master plan worked even better than the Grants had imagined! Not only was Amy able to retire from her profession, but Leo did as well. "The greatest reward," Leo affirms, "has been the opportunity for us to be better parents and to unify our family in working together toward our dreams." Amy adds, "We are all better people because of the success principles learned and the service we give to other people."

Their World Is Still Growing The Grants' networking business has rewarded them with a seemingly endless bounty. Diamond automobiles have replaced plain wedding bands. Both Leo and Amy drive luxury automobiles (their old rusted car and broken-down truck disappeared long ago). Today, Amy has more than one luxurious coat from which to choose (no more hand-me-downs). Instead of facing the probability of losing their home, the Grants now own a beautiful 9,000-square-foot home with an indoor Olympic-size pool nestled in exclusive Alpine, Utah.

With their former limitations, Amy had never been east of Utah. In a former USA Today article highlighting the Grants' success, the headline read "The World Is Their Playground." And that is true. With their sons, Terry, Paul, James, and John, their Playground. And truly it is. with their sons, Terry, Paul, James, and John, all happily married, Leo and Amy enjoy what they call "Honeymoon of the Month Club," traveling all over the world.

Today the Grants have Diamonds and Double Diamonds in their group. They have built a large international business in Latin America, Europe, and Asia. "People everywhere need what this business has to offer. We are helping people nation to nation, heart to heart build a financially secure future," says Amy.

"This business is filled with unlimited opportunities," Leo shares. "It offers singles, couples, and families a chance to work as a team and develop a future together." All four Grant sons are distributors. Paul has made this business his full-time profession, enabling him to provide a good lifestyle for his family as well as be home with his children. Even though Leo has his master's degree, he says with a smile, "This master plan definitely offers more to a family than any master's degree!"
